Retro fridge for sale

If you're an iPad owner and a passionate fan of retro games, here's a late Christmas present that you might want to consider treating yourself to. iCade is currently sold in bed, bath and beyond (yes, that bed, bathtub and beyond) and can be owned for a reasonable $50. That's half the price it was when it was launched in the US earlier this year by guys in the case of ThinkGeek.in, you've never heard of an iCade before, it's probably one of the most amazing gaming accessories ever designed to be used with an iPad. Designed to work with both the iPad and iPad 2, iCade allows you to play a number of classic video games in style because it is shaped like an old school arcade game cabinet. In addition, it has an arcade joystick style and 8 action buttons for this true classic feel. You connect to the Pad via Bluetooth, so the accessory requires a pair of AA batteries. iCade is currently compatible with more than 100 Atari classics such as Asteroids, Centipede, Battlezone and Tempest. In addition, the App Store has more than 30 titles that can be played with an accessory. And if your iPad has received jailbreak treatment, you can use iCade with your favorite MAME emulator. iCade does not appear to be available online at this time, but you may be able to find it at your local Bed, Bath & Beyond. Of course, feel free to let us know if you get one by dropping the comment below.source: Bed, Bath & Beyond; Outside via TUAW SUBSCRIBE TO OUR NEWSLETTER! Tweet us @UKWomensHealth and tell us - what's always in your fridge? 30/05/2014 Shutterstock 1 of 11 We'd like to tell you that our fridges are forever overflowing with lean chicken breasts, hummus dips, bunches of cabbage and piles of apples. But the truth is that during a busy working week we are more likely to stock half an onion, a bottle of white wine and an almost empty bottle of ketchup! It can be difficult to keep a healthy well-stocked fridge, but here at WH we store a few key useful ingredients for you in the fridge at all times. Press ahead to find out which items are always inside our fridges and be sure to tweet us on @UKWomensHealth and tell us - what's always in your fridge? 2 with 11 Alice Beverton-Palmer, web editor of 1/ Just 2% Greek yoghurt. Breakfasts, curries, puddings, like homemade fro-yos - goes all over! 2/ Jars of antipasti (olives with bones, dried tomatoes, pieces of artichoke). They add instant flavour to salads and omelettes, and I have a ready-made picnic plate if I want a light solo dinner. 3/ Themes - harissa, chermula, pesto, miso and chipotle - are some of my favorites. A teaspoon of these little cans turns chicken breast or salmon fillet without piling on calories. 3 out of 11 Jones, Editorial Assistant 1/ 1/ Just add a little slice of oil, a little salt and pepper, pop in the oven and there you go - a delicious and healthy snack! 2/ Lemonade Vita Coco is super refreshing after a workout. 3/ Avocado to prepare guacamole dip for sweet french fries. Amazing! Find a delicious cabbage recipe here. OR try something sweeter with this recipe for chocolate cabbage chips. 4 of 11 Amy Greer, Features Editor 1/ Alpro Alpro Almond Milk for smoothies, porridge and coffee. I can't live without it! 2/ Large bag of spinach for smoothies, eggs, pasta sauces and salads. Spinach is a great way to bulk up food and get that vitamin boost. 3/ Sriracha chilli sauce because ... it makes everything better. Yum! 5 of 11 By Faye O'Sullivan, Deputy Art Director of 1/ Beetroot Juice for an energetic and refreshing drink - especially after a jog! 2/ Tiptree organic tomato chutney - I'll smear it on just about everything, but I particularly love it on bacon and avocado sarnie - brunch perfection! 3/ Lemons, lots of lemons. They save any soft food. Find our favorite brunch recipes here. 6 of 11 by Katie Tektan, Deputy Subredtor 1/ Eggs. Scrambled eggs and spinach on toast is my zero-effort dinner when I get home late from the gym and I'm too heartbroken to cook. 2/ Spinach bag - see 3/ Carbonated water tastes much better than tap when I wake up a little worse for wear after a late night! 7 of 11 Anita Bhawandas, 1/ Almond Milk Editor Alpro - Features Editor Amy introduced me to it and now I'm hooked! 2/ Quinoa and amarant bread has a really nutty flavour that I love - especially when topped with scrambled eggs. 3/ Clarence Court eggs may be a little more valuable than other brands, but they are really better and make scrambled eggs so deliciously creamy! 8 out of 11 by Katie Mulloy, deputy editor of 1/ Aloe Vera Juice. I put shots of it in juices and smoothies. It's big stomach calmer and makes me feel really healthy. 2/ Conscious raw chocolate bars actually taste much better when they're at room temperature, so I just suck on the piece very slowly. That means I eat less! 3/ Cucumbers. I use them as the basis for my juices, so I don't have to rely on sweet fruit all the time. Deenius! 9 out of 11 Frances Young, chief sub-editor 1/ I always have ginger... 2/ ... And fresh chilli in my fridge. They're my jazz staples to stirners - mine go for food after a long day at work. I also put loads of ginger in juices and chilli in salads for a nice kick! 3/ I always have fresh herbs too. You can add them to any food to instantly enhance your taste. 10 out of 11 Emily Murphy, managing and image editor of 1/Almond Milk - I started drinking it in the office and now I need to have it at home, too! 2/ Fresh mint for salsa, dips and mojitos if I'm naughty... 3/ Greek yoghurt for breakfast if I have granola with fruit, or as a healthy afternoon snack or even as dessert when I'm rushing honey. 11 out of 11 Deliner, deputy web editor of 1/Rice Milk, to go in porridge and coffee. He is He a little sweet, so I don't need to add any extra sugar! 2/ Eggs - for any food! I like it when I scramble in the morning, cooked and crushed into salads for lunch, or turned into a frittata for a protein-filled evening meal. 3/ Spinach and eggs are just a match made in heaven. Plus I can add any withering bits in the lane. Yum! Next, What's your tipping point? Check back every day for a new deal exclusively for WomensDay.com visitors. When it comes to handbags, books and art, I always prefer vintage brand new. Contemporary art isn't for me. I like the look of old book covers, and I'd much rather have a unique-looking purse with some history than any it-bag. But when it comes to movies and music, I tend to go for what just came out. The perfect combination of my two sensibilities, for example: Fiesta Dinnerware. It was developed in 1936 in art deco style, but it evolved over time (each year they choose a suitable new color and seclud the old one). Until June 28, 2007, at 3:30 p.m.m ET, buy Fiesta Colored 4-Pcs. or 5-pcs. place customization for $24.99 and get a free 16 ounces.
